

Noted Lawyer Garry Still In the News

By NANCY STANCILL
Charles Garry sizes up each visitor to his red-carpeted San Francisco office with a frank stare. His direct, disconcerting gaze is softened by warm brown eyes.
Like any lawyer, he waits patiently for the visitor to state his case.
But Garry is not just any lawyer. He's one of the best-known criminal attorneys in the country, and his presence in the courtroom is as formidable as it is in the office.

GARRY IS probably the most famous resident of Daly City, although he is generally a silent one. He and his wife Louise have lived quietly at an attractive hilltop home on Wellington Avenue since 1946.

Though Mrs. Garry is an active member of the Original Daly City Protective Association, her husband has made forays into Daly City politics. He has appeared before City Council only a few times, primarily to represent clients.

"That's not where I prefer to make my contribution," he said of local affairs.

Garry, 69, was a well-known labor and criminal lawyer when he was

AT 69, GARRY looks 15 years younger and shows no signs of slowing down. He said he gets up at 5:15 each morning and routinely works 12- or 13-hour days, seven days a week.

"Physically I feel 20," said the lawyer, who wears brightly colored clothes and has abundant wiry, golden hair. "I have no plans to retire."

Garry was born Garabed Hagop Robutlay Garabedian in Bridgewater, Mass. The son of Armenian parents, he credits childhood discrimination against Armenians as the basis for developing a "combative nature."

WHEN HIS parents moved to California when he was a youth, he found that his foreign name prevented him from finding jobs. He shortened it to the Americanized Garry and had less trouble.

Garry, after working a number of labor jobs during the Depression, decided to become a lawyer. He attended the San Francisco Law School and was admitted to the bar in 1938.

The impetus to his career in law, he said, was "a deep-seated revulsion to capital punishment." As a lawyer, he made considerable strides in fighting the death penalty.

Garry said he believes his greatest contribution in that area was developing the defense of "diminished responsibility" which he said, "has slowed death penalty cases to a walk."

In a 1959 case involving a black prisoner named Wesley Robert Wells, he was successful eventually in proving that Wells' treatment in prison had led to "diminished responsibility" for hurling a spittoon at a prison guard.

Garry said the "diminished responsibility" defense has become a cornerstone of criminal trials.

More recent cases include the successful defense of Inez Garcia, who became a cause celebre of the women's movement for shooting a man who helped to rape her.

The attorney said he doesn't know exactly how he selects clients who ask him for representation.

"I turn down a lot of cases," he said. "I don't like crybabies for clients. I don't like to hear people moan and groan. I will not represent a Nazi because I don't care for them."

Garry sizes up juries in much the same way that he chooses clients. He is considered an expert in jury selection and speaks on the subject to attorney's groups.

GARRY, WHO is not shy in talking about his expertise, also said one of his courtroom specialties is cross-examination.

"I'm rough in cross-examination," he said. "In preparation, you have to know where you're going, and why. You need to know when to cross-examine and when to keep your mouth shut."

Garry has made one stab at politics during his career. In 1948-49 he ran for Congress and was not elected. He said he's glad now. The attorney remarked that he also turned down a judgeship with no regrets.

"I'd be just another hack on the bench," he said.

Garry said he believes that there is no such thing as justice.

"Our courts are not geared to render justice," he said, referring to similar statements by Oliver Wendell Holmes. "They are designed to decide complex rules."

"If we went by what is right or wrong in society we wouldn't have 15 million hungry people, substandard housing conditions or people making their living selling dope," he said simply.

GARRY acknowledges that there's a discernable swing to conservatism after the political activism of the late '60s and early '70s, but he does not foresee "any real change while I'm alive."

"But I don't get pessimistic and I don't get hysterical," he smiled. "I measure progress in terms of conditions in the ghettos and they are in horrible states."

What does the somewhat staid legal profession think of Charles Garry?

Garry laughed with evident pleasure.

"They think I'm a goddamned good lawyer, but a radical."

Rezone Measure Offered

An ordinance which eventually will lead to the development of a parcel of land at Westborough Boulevard and El Camino Real in the California Golf Club in South San Francisco was introduced at last week's meeting of the South San Francisco City Council.

City councilmen conducted the first reading of the ordinance, which rezones the land from medium-high density to professional office.

The applicant, Goldrick-Kest & Associates, is considering constructing a 74-unit senior citizen apartment building, a 66-unit senior board and care facility, 21 condominium townhouses, 13,500 square feet of commercial office space, 13,900 square feet of retail commercial floor area and related landscaping and parking.

The proposal for the rezoning still must come before the City Council again for final approval. Any proposals for use of the land must go through the standard procedures, which would begin with a

Gunmen Rob D.C. Woman

A woman entering her car in the Westlake Shopping Center parking lot was kidnapped and robbed Friday by two men who left her unharmed in the car in the Lake Merced area of San Francisco, according to Daly City police.

The 45-year-old woman, whom police didn't identify, had left the Bank of America branch at the shopping center at about 2:30 p.m. when a man with a blue steel revolver put the gun into her side and ordered her into her car, police said they were told.

He then got into the back seat and ordered her to drive, it was reported. In the Lake Merced area she was told to stop, where the gunman and another man who had followed the vehicle in another car, took her jewelry and an unknown amount of money, police said. The men then drove away toward the beach area in the other car, described as a silver 1978 Chevrolet Camaro with no license plates.

The woman then went to the nearby San Francisco Police Department gun range and notified officers there of what had happened. Two San Francisco officers searched the area but turned up nothing, they reported.

The gunman was described as 25 years old.

Differences Aired On Trimming Budget

By TERRY DAVENPORT

Two different budget philosophies split the Daly City Council Thursday night as councilmen eyed a trimmed-down proposal for funding the city through Aug. 31.

Some councilmen argued that the cuts required by Proposition 13 have to start immediately. Others contended the council should avoid hacking away at the budget until the last possible moment, since more funds may be made available.

In the end, the wait-and-see approach won and the council added $155,227 to a proposed $209,770 budget for July and August.

The largest addition, $114,000, will allow 27 full-time city employees to stay on the job through Sept. 30, instead of through August, as originally proposed. Employees must be given 30 days notice before they are fired.

The $114,000 addition was approved on a 4-1 vote over Councilman Anthony Giammona's objections. An increase of $39,849 to reinstate the local Redevelopment Agency at 50 percent of its current level passed by a 3-2 vote.

The council was unanimous in approving $1,378 in dues to the Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG), which determines to some extent which cities will receive grants. The council earlier had decided to drop out of ABAG when dues were $4,312.

City Manager David Rowe's latest estimate is that the city will receive $1 million of the state's $5 billion surplus. Daly City expects to lose $5 million due to Prop. 13.

Councilmen Albert Teglia and James Tucker also spoke in favor of keeping the employees on another month.

There was a long discussion over whether to reinstate the Redevelopment Agency, which aids developers in the Mission Street-Junipero Serra area. The agency operated on a $69,430 budget during 1977-78. Rowe recommended that no tax dollars be allocated for it next year.

But Don Ciucci, staff planner for the agency, seemed to impress the council with his proposals for hefty cuts in funding that still would permit the program to continue.

Instead of requesting $120,219 to continue the agency at its present level, Ciucci gave the council four alternatives to fund redevelopment at 75 percent of the current level (at a cost of $43,845), at 50 percent ($39,849), at 35 percent ($30,644) or 25 percent ($23,958).

Major savings would be achieved Ciucci explained by eliminating his office at 240 - 92nd St. and moving into City Hall, and by reducing secretarial help.

At the 35 percent and 25 percent levels, Ciucci said he would work a four-day work week.

Since the agency's preliminary plan for the redevelopment area was adopted in October 1974, Ciucci explained it had accomplished $500,000 to $700,000 in improvements to the area.

He argued that those improvements make up for the some $900,000 debt the neighborhood has to the city since $350,000 of the debt is recoverable through land sales.

Giammona remained unconvinced, stressing that Proposition 13 allows the city to recoup very little income from the redevelopment area.

Other speakers commended Ciucci for trying to maintain the program on a minimal budget.

All But Chiefs' Pay Cut

All employees in the San Mateo County Community College District — except administrators — received a 1978-79 salary cut this morning.

That action was approved 3-0 by the district's board of trustees during a special meeting at College of San Mateo.

Teachers were cut back 10 percent. Other employee groups had their wages trimmed by 6 1/4 percent.

Chancellor Glenn Smith said management salaries would be frozen but not cut. He said the district's top administrators work on an individual contract basis and potential adjustments in their salaries were "under discussion."

The savings generated by this morning's action will amount to about $2 million, according to Irene Bluth, the district's assistant superintendent for fiscal services.

The money will be set aside in a reserve account so that negotiations with all employee groups can continue in the wake of passage of Proposition 13 and SB 154, the law which implements the Jarvis-Gann Initiative.

Supervisors Restore All But 300 Aides to Jobs

By RICK SULLIVAN

San Mateo County supervisors completed a second round of whirlwind post-Jarvis budget meetings Thursday committing a major portion of state surplus bail-out money to restore program and service cutbacks and rescind the layoff notices to 497 county employees.

That number, however, falls 300 employees short of the total who had been sent termination notices two weeks ago.

For these employees, today is their last day of work.

In an extraordinary two-day session, the board pumped $15.8 million of an anticipated $23.1 million in state revenues into a variety of county departments that had been severely cut during a nine-day special session immediately following enactment of Jarvis-Gann.

During that session, the supervisors chopped $40 million including 797 county employees from the coming fiscal year's budget on the assumption no state replacement revenue would be forthcoming.

Wednesday, the supervisors ordered the recall of 183 dismissal notices by injecting slightly more than $2 million of the new state funds into the departments of public health, parks and recreation, planning, mental health and medical services.

City of Pacifica Lists New Department Phone Lines

New phone numbers now are in effect at Pacifica City Hall.

The streamlined phone system is expected to free the receptionist who used to answer calls for more clerical work.

Beginning this week, these numbers will go into effect:

Information — 877-8650
City Manager's Office — 877-8600
Police Department information — 877-8612
Fire Department information — 877-8661
Community Development — 877-8641
Recreation — 877-8631

Individual numbers are available for many city employees, who will now pick up the phones at their desks.

The former City Hall number, 355-4151, will continue to be used as an emergency number since some residents of Pacifica cannot summon help by dialing 911.

General callers who dial the old number will be referred to the new phone numbers.

Delinquent Taxpayers Gouge Government

By RICK SULLIVAN
How would you like to lose your job because your employer complained he had no money yet he carried an accounts receivable totalling $900,000?

That's essentially the case for about 300 San Mateo County workers who were terminated Friday by Board of Supervisors' decree.

While supervisors bemoaned the revenue restrictions imposed by Proposition 13 and agonizingly chopped county program and services and thus personnel, they sat on $900,000 in delinquent property taxes they can do very little to collect.

And those who owe the back taxes are businesses, real estate speculators and homeowners who are profiting directly from provisions of the tax-slashing Jarvis-Gann initiative.

According to Tax Collector/Treasurer Ross Conti, the county is carrying about 7,000 delinquent property tax accounts totalling $4,551,000.

That is the highest delinquency total in recent years and about $1 million higher than this time last year.

The county is entitled to about 20 per cent of the $4.5 million or $900,000. The remainder is owed to municipalities, school districts and special districts, which are also being forced to cut employees because of lack of funds.

Conti said the largest delinquent account is that of Lewis Douglas, who owns two parcels on Mariner's Island. The developer, Conti stated, owes $176,000 on one parcel and $56,000 on an adjoining one.

The tax collector explained that a significant percentage of the amount due is for improvement bonds and could not be used to pay for public programs and services. But he added that some of the taxes owed could indeed be used to fund public offerings.

Conti said he is aware of many real estate speculators who also are withholding payment of taxes, opting to absorb the 1 per cent per month penalty on the unpaid taxes, while inflation pushes the value of their property far in excess of the penalty.

The money earned on this tax payment postponement is on top of the 60 percent reduction in property taxes guaranteed by Proposition 13.

Efforts to encourage payment of back taxes are intense, stated Conti, but they are to a large degree restricted by law.

He said his office routinely mails "reminder notices" to tardy taxpayers, but added that the law requires he wait five years before taking over the deed on property owned by a delinquent taxpayer.

Daly City Council Undecided On Child Services Location

The Daly City City Council has left the future of a child care center run by the city's Community for Children's Services hanging.

Representing the organization, Nemer Gonzalez asked the council Thursday to pay $5,000 to move a portable building from 350 Lowell St. to the corner of Winchester and Templeton streets.

The city has been given notice that it must remove the building from its present site by Aug. 1. However, funding to continue the child care program now being run in the building is up in the air.

Frank Karavos of the Crocker Neighborhood Association said he had contacted 55 residents in the area and that 40 of them didn't want the portable building moved to their neighborhood.

Calling the building an "overgrown tool shed," he explained that members of his group would prefer to have open space or homes on the land.

Mayor William Schumacher questioned DCCCS employees closely about how many children they serve in the portable. Gonzalez said there currently are 14 children in the center, 10 of whom are in the "vendor program" which allows them to be placed in other agencies.

Gonzalez said most of the other child care facilities are full, except perhaps one in the Bayshore district.

Another DCCCS employee said the center would have more children if its future funding weren't so uncertain.

"People around the area where we work are low-income and can't afford to pay $150," she said, adding that there are 150 families on a waiting list.

Questioning Gonzalez further, Schumacher surmised that there are five full-time and four part-time employees running the program. He said that appeared to be a pretty high number of employees to serve 14 children.

But the council took no action on Gonzalez' request to pay the $5,000 moving charge, choosing instead to continue the item until the next council meeting, July 10.

Meanwhile, Schumacher said he hopes DCCCS and people in the Crocker neighborhood get together to iron out the problem.

Annual Blood Drive Slated

South San Francisco's annual community blood drive this year will be at the Elks Club, Hillside Boulevard and Stonegate Drive.

Dates for this year's drive are July 22, Oct. 14 and Jan. 13 and April 14, 1979.

"The purpose of the project is to provide a perpetual source of blood to be available without charge to all residents of the City of South San Francisco to the extent of their needs, regardless of whether or not the persons in need have ever donated blood," said Les Davis of the chamber of commerce.

The drive is sponsored by the chamber of commerce and the South San Francisco Lions Club. A free breakfast will be served to all donors.

"Non-residents who are gainfully employed in South San Francisco will be permitted to draw up to five pints of blood from the account," Davis said, "with amounts needed in excess of five pints being permitted at the discretion of the chamber and Lions in view of the account's supply and demand experience."

"Nonresident donors and resident donors who remove their residency from South San Francisco shall be entitled to draw on the account to the extent that they have donated to the account," he added.

City Chamber of Commerce, Charles Turner said the city needs taxable sales generated by the redevelopment area, which last year amounted to $49.4 million — the second highest of any area in the city.

"We cannot abandon this project at this time. ... We're close to bearing fruit. To terminate it now would be idiotic with the capital investment we have," Turner said.

Planning Commission study and public hearings.

In another matter, the council will hold a study session to discuss problems encountered in the Westborough and Stonegate Ridge planned-community districts by the use of "Textcote" as an exterior surface. No date was set for the study session.

In Stonegate Ridge, according to Planning Director William Costanzo, the homeowner associations "are active and are currently involved in a number of corrective actions to correct the Textcote problems."

"These actions include legal suits against the developers, banks and manufacturer of Textcote and the commencement of corrective improvements to the exterior of the dwellings, including the replacement of Textcote with other acceptable materials lists."

Frank Spaderella, a member of the project area committee, said the group agreed that nothing less than 50 percent funding of the agency would be acceptable.

Giammona proposed postponing funding of redevelopment for six months, until the city better knows how much money it will have with which to operate next year. Meanwhile, he said Ciucci could be kept on in another planning function so his expertise wouldn't be lost.

"If you let it go six months, you might as well forget it," Spaderella said.

Tucker commented, "My concern is, if we do delay, we put a sense of fear into the whole area," adding that developers wouldn't have much faith in the future of redevelopment.

Giammona countered that the program was supposed to pay for itself.

Schumacher moved to approve funding of redevelopment at the 50 percent level with a further reduction of secretarial help, since Ciucci could use the secretarial pool at City Hall.

Tucker surprised the council by voting against the motion, which failed 3-2.

Tucker proposed instead that Ciucci's original plan for 50 percent funding, including full-time secretarial help, be funded at $39,849. The motion passed 3-2, although Teglia commented "I'm dragging my feet."

When the pictures came back later, Audrey farcically captioned my expression as "Can't wait until after the Prom," and here as "Oh no, Motel 6 again!"

Spit Roasted Duckling

Wash and prepare duckling. Insert rotisserie spit lengthwise through cavity, balancing duckling on spit; tighten holding prongs. Tie wings against breast. Tie legs together loosely, looping cord around tail. Attach spit to rotisserie. Roast duckling until brown and fork tender, about 30 minutes per pound. While duckling is barbecuing, prepare orange sauce.

Orange Sauce

¾ cup orange marmalade, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, ¼ cup orange juice, ¼ cup vinegar, 1 tablespoon prepared mustard, 2 teaspoons cornstarch, ½ teaspoon salt. Combine ingredients in saucepan; mix well. Bring to boil, stirring constantly, and cook until thickened. Brush duckling with sauce several times during last 30 minutes of roasting. Serve remaining sauce with duck. Makes 4 servings.

Jeff Meeting Jammed

There was standing room only Thursday as citizens packed into the Pacific City Council chamber to tell Jefferson Union High School District trustees how to prepare their post-Proposition 13 budget.

Superintendent Floyd Gonella called the evening "one of the better exchanges in regards to public input."

Citizens pleaded with the board to save extra-curricular programs for students and to make cuts in the administration rather than the classroom.

One contingent presented the board with petition containing 900 signatures of persons who want Music Teacher Robert Shedd reinstated at Oceana High School in Pacifica.

In February, Shedd requested a leave of absence at no pay for the coming school year. He recently asked the board to rescind that request, but the board refused, explaining that arrangements already had been made to replace Shedd.

Board Chairman James Roman said acceptance of a petition was not on Thursday's agenda but that the board would accept the document formally at the next meeting July 11 at 8 p.m. at Jefferson High School in Daly City.

A large group of senior citizens asked that adult education programs be preserved.

Public testimony continued for nearly 2½ hours, with 43 persons speaking. It was the second public hearing the JUHSD board has had regarding budget cuts.

In other action, trustees approved contracts with the California School Employees Association (clerical and library workers) and with the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (cafeteria workers, building maintenance employees, bus drivers and others).

Both contracts were approved on 4-1 votes over Roman's protests. He argued against the organizational security sections in both contracts which permit the groups to levy fees on all workers eligible to join their unions.

example, what a policeman really costs."

He remarked that benefits seem to be rising far more rapidly than salaries and are a hidden cost increase.

City Manager David Rowe confirmed that one of the conditions of accepting part of the state surplus is that city salaries can't be increased.

Wade advised caution in cutting salaries, saying that the city always has needed good supervisory personnel and needs them now even more than before.

Among the other recommendations:

• Printing — Peter Markovich of the Chamber of Commerce advised not eliminating the Central Services Department at City Hall, pointing out that the council would find the cost of printing by outside firms to be "staggering."

Suggestions Flow For DC Budget

Many of the citizens who attended a hearing Thursday on Daly City's July-August budget had some suggestions for the City Council on how to cut expenses.

Two members of the audience proposed slashing salaries "at the top." One was Dave Sereni, who ran salaries of city workers through a computer to point out some inequities.

Sereni listed the average annual salaries of the five highest paid and the four lowest paid departments and noted that there is a vast difference in the pay scales at the top and bottom.

For example, he said the four employees in the city manager's department receive an average of $24,500 per year. The department is proposed at 70 to 75 percent funding for the coming year.

In the Water Department, Sereni commented that the average salary of the 25 employees is $21,800. That department is supposed to be funded at the 90 to 100 percent level next year.

But Sereni said the 20 employees in the Recreation Department are paid an average of $16,442 and that this department is scheduled to be maintained at about the 45 percent level in 1978-79.

Twenty library workers, who now receive an average of $13,567, have been proposed for 40 to 49 percent funding next year.

Ernie Pezzola, a long-time council watcher, said "I had the pleasure of learning today that I'm the most hated person around City Hall. That makes me happy."

Pezzola then proposed slashing the top seven positions in City Hall by 10 percent and eliminating the jobs of assistant to the city manager and assistant director for Community Development. There was a smattering of applause.

Conrad Pavellas said he didn't see any reason for needing a $190,000 multipurpose center.

William Wade of the Westlake Homeowners Association commended the council for "doing well" with the budget, but he added that his group would like to see some shifts made so libraries and recreation could be budgeted better.

Wade also asked that costs related to fringe benefits be grouped with each city department's expenses "so that we can see, for

AT CONFERENCE

Dave Dale, 88 Woodside Ave., Daly City, recently participated in a five-day business and educational conference with officers and leading sales representatives of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company at the Southampton Princess Hotel in Bermuda. During 1977, Dale, associated with the company's San Francisco office at 305 Gellert Blvd., Daly City, placed in the top three percent of Metropolitan's 20,000 sales representatives in the United States and Canada. Pictured with him at the Bermuda conference are his wife Mary Ann, left, and daughter, Kristine, right.

Roman said he thought a person who doesn't want to join a union should not have to pay a fee.

All money items in those contracts were frozen at 1977-78 levels.

The board still must negotiate contracts with teachers and another union of grounds workers.

AF Promotes D.C. Airman

Anna C. Parraga, daughter of Mrs. Aracely Parraga, 415 Northaven Drive, Daly City, has received her first promotion in the U. S. Air Force. Parraga, promoted to airman, recently completed technical training at Sheppard AFB, Tex., and is now assigned at Mountain Home AFB, Idaho. She serves as a passenger and household goods specialist with a unit of the Tactical Air Command. A 1976 graduate of Westmoor High, she attended Skyline College.

Attendance Is Booming

How Vacation Bible Classes Reach Youth

A BIG GRIN FOR JESUS

This cute little girl was among more than 100 children attending Vacation Bible School at First Lutheran Church in South San Francisco this week. Churches throughout San Mateo County are experiencing an attendance boom because public schools have canceled most summer sessions.

By DUANE SANDUL

Vacation Bible schools (VBS) in San Mateo County are experiencing a boom because of limited public summer school, a random survey shows.

To people like the Rev. Charles Calhoun at First Southern Baptist Church in San Mateo, it's an opportunity for the church to reach young children who previously have missed VBS because of conflicts with public school.

To volunteers like Jeanine Hillebrandt in South San Francisco, VBS also is an opportunity for young people to strengthen their faith.

Vacation Bible schools historically have dipped into the community, striving to attract youngsters during the summer. But competition with family vacations and summer school has limited the outreach.

This summer it's a different story.

"We have a greater opportunity to reach neighborhood children because the parents are more willing to have them come and because it doesn't interfere with summer school," said Calhoun.

He is predicting a 50 percent enrollment boost when VBS begins at First Southern Baptist July 31.

"The amount of religious training received during a two-week VBS is roughly equivalent to two-thirds of a year in regular Sunday school, even excluding crafts and refreshments," Calhoun said.

Mrs. Hillebrandt finished an action-packed, two-week VBS Friday, which combined 120 youngsters from First Lutheran Church of South San Francisco, Hope Lutheran of Daly City and Our Redeemer Lutheran of South San Francisco.

Enrollment was up at least 10 percent.

The goal of that program was similar to the goals of many vacation Bible schools.

Mrs. Hillebrandt puts it this way:

"We hope that those who have not come to know the Lord can come to know him through VBS, and that those who already have can be strengthened in their faith," Mrs. Hillebrandt said. She served as director.

Can volunteers "reach" youngsters with the gospel in two weeks?

"We can't but the Lord can," said Mrs. Hillebrandt. Besides vacation Bible schools, several Peninsula churches are planning or currently offering innovative programs for youth.

For instance, 50 youngsters from St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in San Bruno are traveling to a church in Bonita, near San Diego, for their vacation Bible school, August 18-28.

Teachers will utilize puppets to illustrate Biblical themes, written by Episcopal youth director the Rev. Scott Sinclair, according to spokeswoman Shirley Powell.

The Church of Christ in Redwood City offers a summer recreation program from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, for youngsters 6 to 12.

The Calvary Community Church in San Bruno is sponsoring a one-week "Kids Crusade" beginning July 16, with nightly sessions from 7 to 8:30.

A random check of Peninsula churches reveal that these are offering VBS to their own congregations and the community.

• Cedar Avenue Baptist Church, San Bruno, dates in August pending.

• First Baptist, Redwood City, July 27-Aug. 4.

• First Baptist Church, San Mateo, July 31-Aug. 11.

• First Southern Baptist, San Mateo, July 31-Aug. 9.

• Calvary Baptist, Redwood City, Aug. 7-18.

• Church of God, San Bruno, August 21-25.

• Peninsula Church of God, Redwood City, dates in August pending.

• Congregational Church, San Mateo, July 10-20.

• Calvary Lutheran Church, San Bruno, tentatively Aug. 21-25.

Other churches may be having VBS or other summer activities which can be obtained by calling them.

Fifty Years at the Movies!

The entire July-August issue of Saturday Evening Post is a salute to America's movie industry and to the stars and directors and producers and cameramen who have entertained America.

THE POST asked film critics Rex Reed and John Simon and the American Film Institute to choose the best movies, actors and actresses of all time. Reed selected "Gone With The Wind" as the best movie of all time. Simon chose "Badlands," while the editors chose "The Wizard Of Oz."

As the best actor of all time Reed chose Spencer Tracy. Simon selected Frederic March and the editors picked Sir Alec Guinness. Reed believes Audrey Hepburn was the best actress — or Judy Garland. Simon selected Jane Fonda and the editors picked Elizabeth Taylor.

The Post's choice of the 50 best movies contain most of the universal favorites and a few surprises. Of further interest are the choices of the best supporting actor, the best supporting actress, the best director, animal movie, comedy, epic, musical, mystery, love story, war story, and Western movie of all time. As may be expected Reed, Simon and the editors of the Film Institute seldom agreed. Do you?

FOR THE special issue, the Saturday Evening Post borrowed from a feature it ran from 1945 to 1955 and asked several stars to name the role each liked best. Ronald Reagan, weary of solving more movie crimes than a lie detector, chose his part in "Kane Rockne, All American." Rita Hayworth chose her role in "Gilda." Donald O'Connor his part in the Francis movies, while Harpo Marx wrote "From one idiot to another: I liked 'Duck Soup.' But then what can you expect from a moron?"

Of special interest is a reprint of an article written in 1930 by the man who invented motion pictures, Thomas Alva Edison. Another is a feature on reel life stories which recalls such wonderful roles as: Jimmy Stewart as Lindbergh, Gregory Peck as MacArthur, George C. Scott as Patton, Gary Cooper as Sgt. York, Jimmy Cagney as George M. Cohan and Don Ameche and Henry Fonda as Alexander Graham Bell and his friend Watson.

Contemplating the place of the movies in American life, the editors of Saturday Evening Post wrote these words:

"IN A movie life is focused, narrowed into a meaning. We see, very clearly for once, those elusive bugaboos, our beginning, middle, and end. We sit in the dark, and the screen appears like the light at the end of the tunnel, the tunnel of our possibilities. And if the movie is good, we emerge from the darkened theater with not just our eyes adjusting to the light, but our hearts, spirits, and brains, too."

Surely the July-August issue of The Saturday Evening Post is a publication that everyone should read — and will enjoy.

Unexpected Attack Raises Legal Questions

By BILL HURSHMANN

On April 6, 1972, Sharon Murray was sitting at her desk in her fifth grade reading classroom at Sunshine Gardens School in South San Francisco.

Two months shy of her 12th birthday, Sharon had complained to her mother earlier in the day of feeling ill. Believing it to be a child's way of avoiding a spelling test she was to take that day, her mother, Barbara Murray, didn't believe her.

"Often when tests were coming up, she would play sick," Mrs. Murray recalls. "The day before she had gone wading because she couldn't swim with her pierced eardrum, and that excited her. Then she had some chocolate to eat that night."

"And, that morning, she said she was sick. I knew there was a spelling test coming up and I didn't believe her and told her she must go to school," Mrs. Murray says.

Sharon attended her first class without a hitch. Then, during her reading class and with the teacher's back apparently turned, Sharon collapsed.

According to her mother, Sharon had vomited, fallen and knocked herself temporarily unconscious. Her teacher, Katherine Kakos, sent her to the bathroom to clean up, and then to the school nurse, Ila Walker.

Suspecting her symptoms to be those of the flu, the school called Sharon's grandfather, visiting from Texas. He picked her up and took her home to rest.

Sharon told her mother that night that, while reading her book during class, the words had become blurred; the next thing she knew she was lying on the floor.

"I thought she might have been making up the story," says Mrs. Murray, then a note taker now assistant manager of operations at a San Francisco bank.

Mrs. Murray — herself having had a bout with the flu two weeks earlier — dismissed Sharon's condition as just that, and sent her to bed early.

The next morning, when Mrs. Murray went to awaken her daughter for school, she couldn't arouse her. She immediately telephoned her doctor, Dr. Elizabeth MacCauley, and was instructed to proceed to Peninsula Hospital in Burlingame.

Sharon, during the night, had lapsed into a coma, in which she remained for nearly a month before showing recognizable signs of life.

Her survival was considered extraordinary.

"Sharon Murray had a lethal combination of medical problems," wrote Dr. Marvin L. Auerback of San Mateo less than a month after the initial fall at school. "She had a massive cerebral hemorrhage and, immediately after surgery, almost fatal pulmonary edema. She almost died several times that day, and required constant medical care. . . . Ordinarily, the mortality rate for Sharon's problem runs in the 90 percent range. The very fact that she survived is remarkable."

Kept alive by machine for a month, her body on ice, Sharon finally pulled out of it. Although alert, she was unable to walk or talk; so, her mother received therapy instruction.

"One day I clearly remember was when she started to try to talk," Mrs. Murray says. "It sounded like a record on slow speed."

After another operation to insert a plate into Sharon's head, where the bone had been removed during initial surgery, and after much therapy, Mrs. Murray allowed Sharon to enter the sixth grade.

"When she went back to school, her head was shaved and the scar was showing," Mrs. Murray says. "The students made her feel different. There were too many arguments and too many fights."

In April Mrs. Murray removed Sharon from school. The next September, Mrs. Murray again enrolled Sharon in school — the seventh grade.

"I thought she might have been doing poorly and I approached the school with it," she recalls. "They said she didn't need special help."

Sharon finished the seventh grade and proceeded to the eighth at Alta Loma Junior High.

It was then that South San Francisco Unified School

District personnel acknowledged young Sharon needed special help.

Mrs. Murray enrolled Sharon in Language Associates, then in San Mateo, a special school for students with learning disabilities. They tested the then 16-year-old and found her to have a math level of a fourth-grader and a reading comprehension level of a seventh-grader.

Sharon still attends Language Associates, now in Orinda and although she still has problems her progress, Mrs. Murray says, has been steady.

"Her speech is normal now," her mother says. "Her coordination is off, but not too much. I doubt that she'll ever have normal intelligence. I don't know if she ever will get a high school diploma, or ever find a job."

"But Language Associates has helped her. Her emotions now are under control and she's able to relate to other students."

Once she had her daughter's education squared away, Mrs. Murray began to seek legal recourse for hospital bills and education costs.

Her initial insurance claim against the school district was refused.

"The policy under which your daughter is insured provides benefits for expenses resulting from injuries sustained at school and during certain specified school events," wrote Terence Henchy, manager of claims for ITT Hamilton Life Insurance Co., Los Angeles.

"In reviewing this claim we feel that there has not been detailed any specific injury which can be clearly attributed as the cause of the hospitalization."

After the denial, Mrs. Murray went to San Bruno attorney Steve Chase, and in February 1977 a suit was filed in Superior Court in Redwood City against the district.

A jury ruled in favor of the district, rejecting Mrs. Murray's request for $125,000.

Chase, still representing Mrs. Murray, says he is awaiting a date for oral arguments to be presented to the state Court of Appeal.

"We are arguing that when teacher Katherine Kakos found Sharon lying on her back on the floor, too weak to get up, she had a duty to notify the proper authorities that this incident had taken place. Ms. Kakos did not communicate the information that she did have regarding the circumstances under which she found the child. Those circumstances were sufficient to have put a prudent person on inquiry as to the particular facts surrounding the incident," Chase says.

Mrs. Murray adds, "The school was bound to file an accident report and notify the parents. I wasn't notified, even though, because of Sharon's pierced eardrum, I had a card on file indicating the school had my permission to take her to the hospital."

Chase's appeal argument will include:

• A teacher has an affirmative duty to determine that a child has been injured as a result of an accident in the classroom and to make that information known to the proper authorities.

• That the teacher had constructive notice that Sharon had struck her head.

• It was the responsibility of the school district to notify the parent or legal guardian of Sharon that fainting, or a possible head bump, had occurred.

• That the negligence of the defendants and respondents was a substantial factor in bringing about harm to Sharon Ann Murray.

"The school district had the obligation to notify the parents of all the facts," says Chase. "If that isn't the law now, it should be the law."

Mrs. Murray is receiving some partial reimbursement for education costs — now at $415 a month — and for $100-a-month psychologist visits.

"She still needs constant supervision," Mrs. Murray says, "but for a child that was going to be a vegetable, she is doing terrific."

Mrs. Murray's and Chase's concerns, they say, are that the district failed to notify her of an accident.

"If I knew she had fallen, I would have taken her directly to the doctor's office. One doctor told me that if we could have gotten to it earlier, we could have prevented some of the damage."

"I've learned out of all of this that if something is wrong, you can't just leave it up to the next guy. You've got to do something about it yourself."

SEEKING LEGAL RECOURSE

Mrs. Barbara Murray and Sharon.

Jury's Verdict Correct, Says School Attorney

"I don't believe any error of law was made by the courts and I believe the jury's verdict was correct," says Greg Harvey, the attorney who is representing the South San Francisco Unified School District in its legal battle with Barbara Murray over an injury sustained by her daughter Sharon.

The suit, says Harvey, a San Francisco medical malpractice defense lawyer, involves epidural hematoma, or the rupturing of a small blood vessel in the lining between the skull and the brain.

Often, he says, such rupturing can occur without the symptoms being recognizable immediately. During that period, called a lucid interval, the bleeding causes pressure on the brain and it begins to swell. Occasionally, there are no symptoms for up to 24 hours after the initial injury.

"The only thing the school district knew was that she (Sharon Murray) had vomited and had been found lying on the floor."

"They secured a history from the family that the child had been exposed to the flu at home, and the assumption was made that she was suffering from the flu."

Harvey says the school district nurse acted properly in referring Sharon home and recommending she be taken to a doctor.

"She wasn't taken to a doctor until 6 a.m. the following morning, when she was found unconscious. At that time the neurological tests were done and it ultimately was discovered that she had epidural hematoma," he says.

Harvey notes that during the original trial, on behalf of the school district, he had argued that there was no information which could have led to a diagnosis of a head injury; that it was recommended that medical attention be secured; and that if medical attention was immediately secured, there was no way a physician would have been able to diagnose epidural hematoma until the time young Sharon was taken to the hospital anyway.

"Medical experts during the trial said it was caught as soon as it was possible," Harvey said.

Harvey also is handling the district's side on the pending appeal.

John Curtis, the Giants' southpaw relief pitcher, is a rarity among professional baseball players at three levels: he is a gentleman in almost the purest sense of the word; he borders on being an intellectual; and, rarest commodity of all for any professional athlete, he can look at himself objectively.

Despite the facts that he is surely not headed for a 20-win season, has never predicted a shutout and doesn't seem about to get into a word war with Sparky Anderson, he may be the most interesting person with the Giants club.

FOR EXAMPLE, Curtis may be the only active player in the big leagues who can speak with some authority on newspaper people in general and baseball writers in particular, because he was once a working journalist. He has "a lingering ambition" to someday write a novel about baseball, possibly about life riding the buses in the minor leagues and the psychological impact of such on home and family life, and such other deep things that most players live but rarely think seriously about.

But that will have to wait for another column or two or three.

Today's treatise is about Curtis' objectivity about himself, about his ability to verbalize the frustrations of a young professional athlete.

WHEN reminded that early in his career he was a power pitcher who once led the Western Carolina League in strikeouts, he replied "That was the first big adjustment of my career. My last year in the minors (with Louisville) I realized that I didn't have a good enough fastball to consistently throw it by the hitters. All through high school and college (Clemson) and the lower minors I had been conditioned to believe that I had that kind of fastball, so it was sort of a shock to me when I discovered the hard way, that I didn't have that kind of fastball.

As a result, my breaking ball suffered because I hadn't spent enough time developing it. Because of that, I never really had enough confidence in my curve to throw it in situations where I was behind the hitter. Until just a few years ago, the curve was always a waste pitch.

"MY NEXT big shock was when I came over to the National League (from Boston to St. Louis), which is a notorious fastball hitter's league.

"I was eaten alive! "That required a big adjustment. At one time the plate looked so small to me that I felt that if I threw it anywhere near the middle of the plate I would get crushed. So I started looking for the 'black' (the corners) and didn't have much success doing that.

"Now people were saying I wasn't aggressive enough, that I was too 'cute,' and I guess they were right. I didn't want to believe that; but at least certain elements of the things they were saying about me were true.

"THEY SOURED on me as a starting pitcher, and that was the biggest turning point in my career; when the National League decided I might make it as a relief pitcher and I began relieving more than starting with St. Louis.

"I had never conceived of myself as a relief pitcher, again because of the way I had been conditioned; just as I had been conditioned to think I was a power pitcher. From the time I started playing baseball I had been a starting pitcher. I didn't relieve once in the minors.

"I didn't really learn about relieving until I was in the majors, and that's a hard way to break into a new situation.

"ONE OF my career problems has been that I've always been with an established team. When I got to Boston they were in the middle of a pennant race. One or two bad games and you were out of the rotation. It was the same with St. Louis.

Le Pacini

"No team ever stuck with me, because they couldn't really afford to. Had I been, for example, with an expansion team I would have been much better off, because I would have had time to develop. Look at Randy Jones with San Diego. He wasn't an instant 20-game winner, but he was with a building team that could afford to be patient with youth.

"You know, I've been told in the past that since I left Boston, I've gone downhill. But I don't think anybody's ever given me credit for the pitcher I am, or has gone out on a limb for me.

"LAST YEAR with the Giants was a total loss for me, and then when the season ended a problem developed with my contract and my career with the Giants was in severe jeopardy. I didn't know whether I wanted to stay here or not.

"I finally signed, and then Joe Altobelli had a talk with me. He's the first manager I've had who has convinced me that I'll give up on myself before he will.

"I'm 30, supposedly in the middle of my prime as a pitcher, but frankly, I don't really know yet where my future is. I have a two-year contract and after next year, who knows? I might be doing something else other than playing baseball.

"ON THE other hand, I'm still constantly learning things about myself, and I'd like to think that it's all just beginning for me. I realize that there are a lot of things I've lacked as a pitcher, but I think I'm finding these things again... the aggressiveness, the control.

"It wasn't until last year, with Herm Starrette (Giants' pitching coach), that I came up with a slider, and I really think this is going to help me. I think now that I'm filling out as a pitcher. My attitude is better. I've resigned myself to relief pitching. So, you see, I'm not decaying.

"But whether the opportunity will be there for me to develop and show these things, who knows?"

If it ain't The Shadow, it had better be Joe Altobelli.

SPARKY ANDERSON hints that the Giants will fold in the second half, when his Reds, their string of wounds healed, put the pressure on.

There are two things which Anderson may not recognize. 1. His team is getting older, and the run of injuries may not be a coincidence, but an on-going pattern. 2. The Reds may have hung in despite their injuries, but the Giants hung in tougher despite virtually no bench at all. Now that they have one, they figure to get better in the second half. Actually, the Giants may now have a superior bench to the Reds, to go along with their superior pitching.

Talk around the Giants' clubhouse is that if a player vote were taken for the team's MVP, Darrell Evans would win it hands down.

BASEBALL TRIVIA: What pitcher was credited with a win in an All-Star game without throwing a pitch? And if that isn't enough for you, who won the Rookie of the Year, the MVP and the Cy Young Award? Answers: Dean Stone and Don Newcombe.

Visit to Naval Course

Its anchors aweigh, my dedicated golfing mates, and time to visit a Naval Postgraduate School Golf Course. It couldn't be found in a more historic setting than the former polo grounds of the old and famous Hotel Del Monte grounds in Monterey. It's situated across the street from the U. S. Naval Post Graduate School, called at times the "Annapolis of the West." It specializes in advanced mathematics, science, engineering and other fields.

The golf course had its beginning in 1963 with the financial backing of the Navy Department and the know-how of a very prestigious and world famous golf architect by the name of Robert Muir Graves. Limited to all military service, active and retired, this course is an extension of friendship carried on by retired officers and military service personnel who play golf there every day, some with the same four-somes. The difference is that they are directing an individual attack on the golf course each day, instead of a military engagement or assignment.

HERE it is, 7:30 p.m., and the bugler from the school is heard. At 8 a.m., the bugler plays the colors and all the golfers on the course, with hats off, silently face the school in respect for the unseen flag being raised. When all the emotional fanfare ended I found myself on an intriguing and sporty 5,564-yard golf course, equipped with five lakes, narrow pine and oak tree-studded fairways with numerous O.B.'s. I also found fairways that were soaked with that marvelous rain that has made its recent presence felt in the parched lands of California. There was very green grass to play golf on, with no extra roll from the soft turf.

The course begins with a 356-yard par-four consisting of two lakes and a hedge of pine trees at the right of the sharp dog-leg. The 350-yard third hole is practically a duplicate of the first, except the water hazard is on the left. In the center of all this are permanent flight approach poles cutting through parts of the course. In the middle of my back swing, singer Paul Anka was taking off in his Lear Jet (Merv Griffin also has one) from Monterey.

The airport is next to the golf course and really adds some noisy vibes to everyone's game. The 495-yard par-five seventh is also ready to make a golf ball vibrant as this double dog-leg left has a stand of trees, lakes on the left and three well-seasoned fairway pines by the corner of the dog-leg that will have to be avoided to enjoy an opportunity to capture a par.

THE INCOMING nine, that comes with a bit of hillside terrain, begins with a strong 417-yard par-four requiring the ultimate in power and accuracy to avoid the heavy outgrowth of pine trees pressing in both sides of the fairway.

The 471-yard slight dog-leg left, five-par 13th is the most resplendent and stimulating golf hole on the course. The tee grounds are right at the end of the Monterey Airport and about 10 feet lower than the runway. And when a commercial aircraft takes off, utilizing every yard of it, it's time to duck and then hit a tee shot immediately after the plane departs to capture some of the jet-wind that could add extra yardage to the drive. It will have to go straight and true as giant high pine trees encircle the fairway that channels into a small and heavily-bunkered entrance way.

The 175-yard one-shot 17th is a picture of difficulty with the tee shot being played over a small rise to a hidden green with trees and sidehill ice-plant guarding it 30 feet below. The 535-yard 18th is spectacular and begins with a blind tee shot over a bluff that has to cover ground as narrow as a drain tunnel with highway on the left and trees on the right. The second shot will find a large oak tree standing guard in the middle of a downward fairway. After getting over or around it, an elevated green, defended by five bunkers, will make for an interesting layout shot.

SPEAKING of bunkers, I found some of the most unusual looking sand hazards. One looked like it was made by "Big Foot" and others must have been designed with the aid of a small cookie-cutter. Most of the greens were diminutive and fitted in comfortably with the design of the course. They were basic level except on a couple of holes like the two-level par-three 12th and the uphill 363-yard par-four 14th. They had tilted putting surfaces and when the greens are normal could cause some fast four-putt sliders.

With all the water from the storms, my putting was an exercise in water spray and bad judgment. I was told that under normal conditions putting speed is medium fast with slight breaks to contend with.

An outstanding grass driving range is available for comfortable practice. A separately-housed coffee bar-lounge and pro shop take care of all needs for golfers and guests.

AFTER playing my round of golf I felt that the Naval Postgraduate School Golf Course had earned its credentials. It received excellent marks from me in holes of challenging adventure, home-styled hospitality and pride of their course.

Lions Leave for Russia

Two members of the Millbrae Lions track team are off to Moscow as members of the U.S. national junior team.

It's the fifth straight year the Lions have qualified at least two girls for the team.

Kella Bolton, the California prep champion in the 100- and 200-yard dashes, finished second in the 200 meters in the recent qualifying meet in Indiana (losing by one hundredth of a second, 24.20 to 24.21) and also qualified as a member of the 400-meter relay team.

Marian Franklin qualified by placing third in the 400 meters, another hotly contested race. She ran a 1:10, beat 55.67 (first place time was 53.12, second place 53.42).

The team left for New York Thursday. Further stops on the tour will be Helsinki, Finland; Moscow; Donetsk (an industrial city in the Ukraine); Hamburg and Amsterdam.

Kim Costello, a recent addition to the Lions, nearly made the national team as well — she finished fifth in an exceedingly close 100-meter hurdles race, after winning a heat race earlier against some of the same competition.

Costello, from El Camino High, had finished second in the low hurdles in the state prep meet earlier this month. In Indiana, she beat Kris Costello (no relation), the California prep champ.

Costello's time over 100 meters (33-inch hurdles rather than 30-inch prep hurdles) was 14.23. The winning time was 14.00.

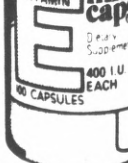

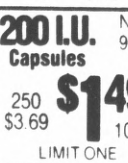

"It was a very good finish, considering that she lacks experience and this was her first national," said Lions coach Ed Parker.

Another Lion, Elaine Parker from Oceana High, is on a U.S. team competing in Mexico against athletes from Mexico, Cuba, Canada, Colombia and Peru.

In a recent meet in Mexico City, Parker won the 100-meter sprint in 11.6, ran on the winning 400-meter relay team and finished second in the 200 meters.

Good morning, good cooks. Convenient! Breakfast-on-the-run is a delicious hot muffin that tastes like maple syrup and applesauce. Make a double batch on the weekend for Sunday's breakfast and freeze the rest. Reheating muffins is fast and simple — it takes about the same time as whipping up a side order of bacon.

Economical! Bring one to work and save the 35 cents you may have to spend for a sweet roll during coffee break.

Nutritious! Maple Applesauce Muffins have a natural sweetener of maple syrup for a quick nutritious start in the morning. Enriched flour has the essential B vitamins plus the mineral and iron. Another bonus is the fruit. Add bacon or pork sausage.

MAPLE APPLESAUCE MUFFINS

2 cups enriched flour*
1 tbs. baking powder
1 tbs. salt
1/2 tsp. ground cinnamon
1/2 cup shortening
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup maple syrup
2 eggs
2 cups applesauce

Stir together two cups flour, one tablespoon baking powder, one teaspoon salt, and 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon. Cream 1/2 cup shortening and 1/4 cup sugar until fluffy. Add 1/4 cup maple syrup. Stir in two eggs and 1/4 cup applesauce.

Mixture tends to curdle. Stir in flour mixture. Fill greased muffin cups 2/3 full.

Baked in preheated 375 degree oven for 20 minutes.

*Spoon flour into dry measuring cup; level. Or follow directions on bag.

THE DIET CORNER

By ELISE GENDAR

You can't win 'em all... Nor can you lose 'em all. Comes the dreary day in every diet when the scales no longer register a downward plunge. Does this mean that you've lost the diet touch? It does not.

IT MEANS that for some reason, psychological or physiological, the diet and you have stranded on what is known as a plateau. This is the most common phenomenon of dieting, and it is not dangerous unless you permit it to throw you back into the arms of a marshmallow sandwich for comfort. Be assured that it has happened to every successful weight loser since reducing began.

Hang in there, and you'll notice that loss will begin again.

Sometimes all you need is a stringent break to jolt your system into losing. Take a cottage cheese day as just that break. Make cottage cheese your protein for breakfast (4 ounces), for lunch (6 ounces), for dinner (12 ounces.)

IF YOU suspect that the problem is less physical than it is emotional, be very good to yourself. True, dieting is re-education and you should grow up enough not to use food as a reward. There is nothing to say that you can't use food as a goad, though. Perhaps your diet has slipped because you are not experimenting enough with diet recipes.

In that case, into the lab with you and experiment thusly:

BAKED DEVILED TOMATOES

4-4 oz. tomatoes, halved
1 tsp. prepared brown mustard
1 tsp. dried green onion flakes
1/4 cup skim milk (liquid)

2 tbsps. chopped green pepper
2 tbsps. chopped celery
1/2 tsp. salt

Place tomatoes in baking dish, cut side up. Spread tops with mustard, chives, green pepper, celery and salt; sprinkle over tomatoes. Slowly pour 1/4 tsp. of milk over each tomato half.

Bake at 425 degrees (hot oven) for eight minutes.

GET YOURSELF away from the scene of your dieting. Go to a movie. Call an old friend to meet you for a shopping expedition. Break your train of thought. Focus on something other than your lack of loss for a day or so. You'll find that you are underway once more.

Safely down from your plateau, make note of it on the calendar. Plateaus have a habit of occurring with regularity. Noting their pattern removes their sting. Once I discovered that I lost weight every fourth week, I could cope with dieting for three loss-lorn weeks secure in the knowledge that I would, indeed, take it off.

If you would like a free copy of a daily dairy (food) for two weeks, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to The Diet Workshop, 2533 Taraval St., San Francisco.

Pastor Son To Lead Service

The 10 a.m. worship services will be led this Sunday by James A. Tweedie at the Broadmoor Presbyterian Church, 377 87th St., Daly City. He also will preach the sermon.

Sunday School this summer is at the same hour. Infant care is provided. Frank and Shirley Sevastakis are school Superintendents. A friendly coffee time is in the social hall after the worship service and the Sunday school are adjourned.

James Tweedie was raised in Daly City and in the local church, of which his father is pastor. For the past year he was student pastor at the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Pacifica and the Bethany Presbyterian Church in San Bruno. He recently was graduated from the San Francisco Theological Seminary at San Anselmo.

D.C. Sailor

Ends Course

Navy Machinist's Mate 3rd Class James A. Keene, son of Evelyn M. Keene, 50 Parma St., Daly City, has completed the Basic Machinist's Mate Course. During the course at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, students received instruction on the use of hand tools and machine shop equipment. In addition, they studied the basic operation, maintenance and repair of ships' propulsion equipment, evaporators and generators. He joined the Navy in December 1977.

Bay Area Visitors Discover Romano's

Pacific offers many pleasant surprises to the Bay Area visitor, one of which is the discovery of ROMANO'S Italian and Seafood restaurant at Rockaway Beach. Located only steps from the Pacific Ocean, this colorful eating-place is operated under the watchful eye of Owner ENRICO ROMANO and his mother, ENRICKETTA, who is over 80 years young. Specialties are numerous and the wine list is extensive. Cocktails, also. Chronicle sports writer Art Rosebaum and his wife, Shirley, were dinner guests at JIM SNIADOCKI'S SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S restaurant the other evening. Art complimented Jim on the excellence of the prime rib. Circle Star Theater-goers and headliners alike are finding the VILLA HOTEL in San Mateo a convenient place to enjoy relaxed dining and cocktails before and after performances. Dancing in the Villa Lounge is another crowd attraction. VINCE'S Italian and Seafood restaurant, now closed for vacation through July 9, has been a dine-out landmark since 1946.

Lehr's Greenhouse New Bocce Room

The world renowned Bocce Ball, for years one of San Francisco's most popular musical attractions, is back at the newly-opened Lehr's Bocce Room at LEHR'S GREENHOUSE garden restaurant. Mario Pieroni has reassembled his bocce ball cast, along with some talented new singers, and they are again playing to overflow crowds Wednesday through Saturday evenings from 9 to 1. Preface your evening's entertainment with a superb dinner in adjoining Lehr's Greenhouse garden restaurant. As much preparation goes into the lunch program at LAUBERGE French restaurant as in the dinner menu, says Owner LOUIS FRUTSCH. Order a complete lunch or a sandwich, such as a Monte Cristo. Club or Fillet Steak, and either way it's a gourmet meal. BEARDSLEY'S in Burlingame invites families to bring the children. A child's plate, featuring hamburger or prime rib (child's cut), includes soup or salad for $4. Popular JIMMY PAYER plays for the dance crowds at NICK'S, Rockaway Beach, Wednesdays through Sundays. What a great place to have breakfast (open 10 a.m. to 2 a.m.) while watching huge breakers of the Pacific Ocean splashing on the shoreline only steps away.

La Pinata Cooking For Barbeque Fun

Having a barbeque or picnic over the weekend? The food-to-go service at LA PINATA Mexican restaurant in downtown Burlingame could fit right into your plans. Supplement your cooking with La Pinata recipes — order rice, refried beans, home made chile beans, tacos, hot sauce to go — and have a "hot" time. YOLANDA'S special for the month of July will be Fillet of Sole Almondine. This 94 family dinner, planned by Chef Jim Castro, includes soup and salad, two vegetables, French bread and butter, and a glass of wine. Offer is good Monday through Friday from 5 to 9 p.m. Happy with the success of their "2 for 1" dinner special, the RODEWAY INN, South San Francisco, is extending the offer for another month. JIM RAINE, general manager, and TONY SANTA HELENA, food and beverage manager, report much approval of their selections. Buy one dinner and receive a second dinner free. However, you must present the coupon before paying the bill. MEL CICERO of the BAYHILL LOUNGE, San Bruno, says their service is the fastest around. Lunch (served Mondays through Fridays) is bustling, with many patrons on a limited lunch break. Specials are available daily.

Ball Players Make Steakery Home Base

PHIL LEHR'S Pay-By-Gram STEAKERY, on the lower level of the San Francisco Hilton Tower, is a great place to meet your favorite ball players. All of the National League teams stay at the Hilton whenever they're in San Francisco to play the Giants, and most of them dine almost nightly at the Steakery. Things are really humming at ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB, in the heart of San Francisco's Geary Street theater row. "Annie" is playing across the street at the Curran Theater, and theatergoers are flocking in to Rosebud's for a pre-theater dinner or a light but flavorful post-theater supper. Lunches are busy at ATLANTIC SEAFOOD restaurant, reports Owner SAM VIDUCHIC, who, with his daughter VIOLET VRANJES, manage to handle the hungry mid-day crowds here. "Sandwiches by the Sea" is just one category considered a specialty. And for burger fanciers, Sam also prepares a "Burger by the Sea". REX BARNETT, country and western music star at the KING'S TABLE in Redwood City, was a quarter-finalist at the American Song Festival last year in Hollywood. His shows on Friday and Saturday evenings feature many of his own compositions, such as "Beggars Can't Be Choosers". On Sundays, you can catch the top-flight musical duo, JIM BRADFORD and BILL NEAL.

42	4	Each	Sanitary Sewer Manholes

The Engineer's estimate of total construction cost for the work is $88,000.

The foregoing quantities are approximate only, being given as a basis for the comparison of bids, and the San Mateo County Flood Control District does not, expressly or by implication, agree that the actual amount of work will correspond herewith, but reserves the right to increase or decrease the amount of any class or portion of the work, or to omit any portion of the work, as may be deemed necessary or expedient by the Engineer.

Pursuant to Section 1773 of the Labor Code, prevailing wage rates have been advertised in a newspaper of general circulation and copies are available in the office of the Director of Public Works and in the office of the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors, on the 7th day of September, 1976, establishing said prevailing wage rates. Said prevailing wage rates shall be made available to any interested party on request, and in such case the successful bidder shall post a copy thereof at each job site.

Overtime — Not less than one-and-one-half (1 1/2) times the above rates. Sundays and holidays — Not less than two (2) times the above rates.

The holidays upon which such rates shall be paid shall be all holidays recognized in the collective bargaining agreement applicable to the particular craft, classification, or type of workman employed on the project.

It is the policy of the County that contractors on public projects employ their workers and craftsmen from the local labor market whenever possible. "Local Labor Market" is defined as the labor market within the geographical confines of the County of San Mateo, State of California. Consistent with this policy, the contractor is requested to employ his craftsmen and other workers from the local labor market whenever possible to do so.

Each bidder shall submit with his bid a Certificate of Compliance, on a form provided in the "Proposal" section of these contract documents, certifying that he is in compliance with the provisions of the Equal Employment Opportunity Requirement of Executive Order 12868, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the California Fair Employment Practices Act, and any other federal or state laws and regulations relating to equal employment opportunity. With the execution of said certificate, the bidder also agrees that he will develop and implement, during the course of the work concerned, an affirmative action program of hiring and employment, conducted without regard to race, color, national origin, ancestry or religion of the applicants. With this certification, he shall submit any and all information which may be required by the District in connection with the particular project.

Plans and specifications and forms of proposal and contract may be seen and obtained at the office of the Director of Public Works, 500 Hamilton Street, Redwood City, California. Plans and Specifications may be obtained for a refundable fee of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) per set. This fee is refundable, less mailing costs, if the plans and specifications are returned to the Director of Public Works within 30 days after bid opening.

Additional technical questions should be directed to Jones-Tillson & Associates, 8775 Flores Street, San Mateo, CA (973-0558). Procedural questions should be directed to the Office of the Director of Public Works, County Office Building, Redwood City, California.

No bids will be accepted from a bidder who is not licensed as required by laws of the State of California.

The San Mateo County Flood Control District reserves the right to reject any or all bids, and/or waive any informalities or irregularities in any bid received.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of sixty (60) days after the date set for the opening thereof.

The blaze was quickly extinguished. Firemen had to rip open walls and a ceiling, however.

Capt. Gil Bustiche said that the owner was not at home at the time but told of attempting to smoke out the bees earlier in the day. Firemen, who went into the house with a one-inch booster line, found the bees were still there and making their presence evident.

Fire Chief Larry Centoni did not get stung, but suffered second-degree burns on two fingers of the left hand when he checked a hot spot in the fireplace with his hand.

Even after the blaze was extinguished, the chimney was still abuzz. Bustiche said. The matter was left to the owner to resolve.
